

Summary of sample collection and procession in the Kenya Breast Health Study

A key aspect of our molecular epidemiology studies in Africa, including the Kenya Breast Health study, is to have high-quality standardised collection of biological samples for molecular assays and analysis with epidemiologic data. A summary of the samples we are collecting are summarised below.

